

Participant Consent Form: HCI Project – Digital Wireframes

The aim of this experiment is to find out your opinions on the digital wireframes and workflow of the design of our project. This will take roughly 10 minutes.

Firstly, the format of the experiment will be explained, and the participant will be given various tasks to complete by navigating between views. The participant will be made aware that everything they are saying to do with the design will be written down and their performance completing the given tasks will be noted. They will be made aware that they can drop out at any point if they want to.

All results will be kept private and no personal data will be stored about the participant. If they choose to drop out, then all data will be discarded.
